the heart of the Promised Land. It gave them a military advantage as they divided the northern and southern cities. But in spite of this advantage Israel needed to be reminded of whose they were and where they needed to stand. Joshua built an altar at Mount Ebal which was directly across Mount Gerizim. In between these two mountains, Joshua gathered all the people of Israel before the Ark of the Covenant and read all that was written in the Book of the Law as commanded by Moses. The hidden sin of Achan was exposed by God. He and his entire household were stoned and burned to death. A great heap of stone was raised over Achan. The monument served as a severe warning of God's wrath against willful disobedience. (7:16-25) God's people must tremble at His wrath. He deals with deliberate, hidden sin decisively.
